2018 12 th July	Darren Laverty publishes a letter from solicitors Imran Khan and Partners on his blog, which stated: 'It has been brought to our attention by our client that publications and statements have been made on Twitter.com, and continue to be made, which suggest or infer that he was involved with the sexual abuse of children when this is completely false, but which appear to be disseminated with the purpose of harassing, abusing and otherwise humiliating him. We enclose an assortment of such content which has been published on your platform.'

It is well-known that our client is himself a survivor of sexual abuse and it could not be more seriously harmful to him as a campaigner and champion of the rights of survivors of sexual abuse when such false allegations are made of him. Indeed our firm acts for Mr Laverty in his capacity as a victim in the ongoing Independent Inquiry into Childhood Sexual Abuse ('IICSA').'

A letter which, in part, directly contradicts what Mr Laverty has himself stated publicly, on several occasions, including an instance online on the 2nd March 2016 at 4:54, in a Tweet to @GhandisOBlocked: 'I'm not a survivor or victim of sexual abuse, just institutional failings and individual assaults by social workers.'

In a published retraction in the Daily Mirror newspaper, dated Thursday, February 17, 2000, which stated: YESTERDAY in late editions of our article on the Lost In Care report into the abuse of children in care, we said that Darren Laverty had been sexually abused. Whilst Mr Laverty claimed that he had been beaten and abused in care in North Wales, at no time was he sexually abused. We apologise to him and his family for the distress caused by our saying this'.

On May 5th 1997, another retraction was published in a different newspaper, stating: 'We have been informed by Mr Darren Laverty, who wished to point out that, contrary to any implications that might have been taken from an article published on September 26, 1996, he did not suffer sexual abuse whilst in care. Mr Laverty started a campaign to help victims of abuse in North Wales, and points out that he has not named anyone as a sexual abuser who has not been convicted. We regret any inconvenience caused and are happy to clarify the position.'

A third man – Todd James Wickens, of Homestead Lane, Wrexham, was found not guilty. One of the offences related to allegations that Delaney and Purcell took a girl to the Dene Hotel in Chester, where she was raped by several unknown men. The victims were two girls at a home for 'cared-for' children in the Wrexham area.
2018 11th December	Darren Laverty announced on his blog that he is withdrawing from his position as 'Core Participant of the IICSA, citing: “The evidence I have seen thus far has shocked and disappointed me to the extent of becoming distressed, upset and angry. The procedural mechanics of the IICSA have failed in all respects. It seems to me that no-one will benefit from being a CP unless you have something to hide from the public, or unless you are a lawyer who's attached oneself to the inquiry. Frankly it's a sickening sight and I regret ever getting involved. Furthermore, the refusal of the IICSA to investigate the media's role in my case evidences a refusal to see the truth of how they treated me as a victim of child abuse. The very fact that a fabricated document the Observer Newspaper and North Wales Police concocted in order to try and discredit me (by alleging I took part in a gang rape at the age of 11) was ignored, is enough to ensure myself that the truth was never going to be part of this inquiry. The final straw was the refusal by the IICSA to pay expenses for victims to attend the hearings when their evidence was presented.”
2018 17th December	Darren Laverty, in a comment made on the 'Barth's Notes' website, stated in response to a question about his 11 December blog post: “I doubt you have any friends. Just for the record the IICSA don't even know about the article you numpty,” which contradicted his own statement on his personal blog which stated: “The very fact that a fabricated document the Observer Newspaper and North Wales Police concocted in order to discredit me (by alleging that I took part in a gang rape at the age of 11) was ignored.....”
2019 15th January	Graham Stridgeon, 64, has his sentence increased after it was referred to the Court of Appeal for being unduly lenient. Stridgeon was originally sentenced in October 2018 to three and a half years in prison at Mold Crown Court. The Court of Appeal

	increased the sentence to five years and ten months, with an extended licence period of three years. While in his teens, Stridgeon sexually abused a fellow resident at Bryn Alyn 40 years ago when the victim was under fifteen years of age.
